

Tears spring from the eyes of the people on the shore.
Parents, sisters, brothers, and friends on board do nothing but wave their hands, the smiles writ large on their faces.

One parent finds her child on the ship who she had been separated from.

A girl finds her best friend on deck, who sank down into the ocean, her hands waving in the sea.

Others struggle to find someone they are dying to see.